

Bank crisis management – what next?

Academic event

17-18 November 2021 | Online

The call for papers is open!
Submission Deadline: 1 September 2021

The Single Resolution Board, the Florence School of Banking and Finance (European University Institute), and the Leibniz Institute for Financial Research SAFE are organising an interdisciplinary academic event, entitled 'Bank crisis management – what next?'. The event will take place in the afternoons of 17 & 18 November 2021 in a virtual format.

With the Global Financial Crisis now more than a decade behind us, and against the backdrop of a seemingly strongly recovering economy, this academic event aims to identify, and evaluate the successes and challenges of the post-crisis EU bank crisis management framework.

How has the presence of new resolution tools, precautionary measures and regulations stood up in times of stress?

Are we on a road to economic recovery that will also invigorate the financial sector?

Or is the financial sector standing on a dangerous cliff edge that is yet to be recognised?

What are the next steps in the journey towards a sustainable and stable financial sector in the EU and in other jurisdictions?

These and more questions will be explored during the two half-day conference jointly organised by the SRB, FBF, and SAFE.

The event brings together leading scholars, and policy-makers to discuss economic, financial, legal, political and public policy topics located at the cutting edge of financial stability and bank crisis management, both from a European and non-European perspective.

We look forward to seeing you in November 2021!
